

Third-Hand Play

In general, third hand (on defense) plays high. When playing from equals, play the LOWEST affordable.

A	Dummy 6 5 3
Partner 2		You K107

Play the King
(3rd Hand High)

B	Dummy 7 3
Partner Q		You A82

Play the Ace
(Declarer could have a singleton king)

C	Dummy 98 7
Partner 2		You QJ106

D	Dummy 98 7
Partner 2		You KQ106

IN C-D-E-F, play the cheapest card which will get the job done.

E	Dummy A10 7
Partner 5		You QJ2

F	Dummy Q8 7
Partner 6		You AK105

G	Dummy Q6 4
Partner 2		You KJ8

Play the Jack

H	Dummy J9 7
Partner 2		You K108

Play the 10

I	Dummy AJ 4
Partner 2		You Q975

Play the 9

G-H-I

If dummy has the king, queen or jack, and you have a higher honor (one or two steps higher), try to save your honor until dummy's honor is played.

It helps if you have something like a 10 or 9 to insert. If you have no intermediate cards, likely nothing you do will matter.

Third-Hand Play (continued)

In all the previous examples, you had a chance to win the trick (or contribute a card to drive out a high card).

If partner (or dummy) is winning the trick (you have nothing higher to contribute), then you should give a signal. Standard would be an "attitude signal." A low card (2-4) means you "don't like it." A high card (8-10) means you do "like it." Medium cards (5-6-7) can be hard to read, but are still intended as signals.

When partner leads Ace from Ace-King (against a suit contract), you will like it if you have the queen, or a doubleton (playing high-low in either case).

J	Dummy 654
Partner A		You Q93

K	Dummy 654
Partner A		You 93

In J & K, Play the 9

L	Dummy 654
Partner A		You J93

In L, signal discouragement with the 3.

If third hand plays properly, the person who led to the trick can better read the position.

M	Dummy 107 3
You K54 2		Partner J

Partner plays the jack and declarer wins the ace. What does partner have in the suit?

N	Dummy 107 5
You Q64 3 2		Partner 9

Declarer wins the Ace. What are the holdings?

O	Dummy 107 5
You Q64 3 2		Partner 8

Declarer wins the Ace. What are the holdings?
